Q&A

Spring into action for healthy blooms

Is it too late to plant spring bulbs?

Dominic, St Albans, Herts DAVID: No, you can plant bulbs right through to December and it's the perfect time to pop in tulips - late planting can reduce problems with the disease tulip fire.

Plus, at this time of year garden centres start to sell off bulb stocks, so you can invest in your garden more cheaply.

Dirty work behind dazzling displays

How important is it to clean my polytunnel?

Jill, via email

DAVID: Though not the most glamorous of jobs, cleaning polytunnels and greenhouses is crucial. If glass or plastic is kept clear of build-up, they let in more light - so growing conditions are better. It helps cut down on pests and diseases too.

TIP of the week

Grate soap in with your newly planted bulbs and the smell and taste of the detergent will deter naughty squirrels from digging them up.

Bulbs are not just for planting... your home illuminations can add magic to dark winter nights as well as win you respect and prizes

Your garden's beauty will never fade if you dress it up with the right lighting. Illuminated festive foliage can look really fantastic - and help to put a seasonal sparkle in your life.

This year I'm working with the Sunday Mirror on a new national campaign, Illumination Street, and it's all about brightening up your garden and getting outside over the winter.

DUST OFF DECORATIONS

Now's the time to get your Christmas lights out of the shed, garage or loft ready to make dazzling displays outside the home.

If you've never done decorating outdoors before, Illumination Street is full of hints and tips to get you started.

Thanks to our sponsor, Safestyle UK, Britain's number one window and door company, there are also thousands of pounds to be won too.

You can visit the website at illuminationstreet.com for full

Put a smile on your face and bring an uplifting light show details - and don't forget Illumination Street week from December 9 to 15.

SEASON'S REASONS

Getting started couldn't be easier and a little can go a long way.

A decorative display at the front of your home can put a smile on your face when you return from work, get the family involved in something creative and bring an uplifting light show for the community to enjoy.

In areas where there are well-kept front gardens, where there are lights and community activity, there is a proven reduction in antisocial behaviour and crime.

And sharing the Christmas spirit makes the neighbourhood a happier place for everyone.

OUTSIDE OUTPUTS

The secret to outdoor lighting is to find the variety that works for you. You could just buy lanterns and position them on the porch, or opt for elaborate fairy light sets, rope lights or spotlights for a spectacular effect.

It really depends on the kind of power you want to use. If you want it nice and simple, with no messing with cables, battery lighting is your best bet.

Many garden centres sell them and with sticky-back products you can position them more or less anywhere.

With the LED lights you get a lot of

Send in your bright ideas

For heavy-duty lighting, it's always best to check an electrician has put in proper outdoor sockets for you. If you're plugging in outside, these need to be waterproof.

FESTIVE THEMES

Tie it all together by going for a colour theme. Many of us have built up lighting stocks over time and the styles can get confused, but if you're starting from scratch it is the ultimate opportunity to theme it.

Have all the lights white for the really classic Christmas snowy feel. Or, for colour combinations, go for blue and silver, red and gold, pink and mauve or a multi-coloured set. It really makes displays look dramatic.

There are many little features you can pepper in too - cheery light-up Santas, snowmen, polar bears and candy canes.

You don't have to start big, just make a move towards festooning your home front and it will make a difference. Then build it up over time.

And you can plant now to grow your own decorations! Holly, spruce and dwarf pines, like Pinus mugo, all work well in your borders and you can dress these up in the future. Take clippings from holly bushes, which are bursting with red berries in autumn, and display as garlands above your front door.

Or make your own seasonal wreaths at home with the kids. You can find inspiration and share your finished creation on social media using #illuminationSt.

WORK WITH NATURE

The other thing to think about is embellishing existing plants in the garden with lighting.

Putting lights around the stems and branches of a deciduous tree that's lost its leaves can look really stunning. And with evergreens or conifers you get a great effect too. Just ensure when you're draping these with lights that you don't damage the foliage.

Go for lightweight products like the wired micro LED sets. Or, if you want a substantial set for that wow factor, wind these around tree trunks.

Brightening up your front garden and spreading the joy of Christmas spirit is at the heart of our Illumination Street campaign.

So brighten up your garden and enter our Illumination Street competition, with thousands to be won for the right lightbulb moment.

OFFER of the week

Miniature standard holly trees are ideal for the space-conscious modern gardener. Unlike holly bushes, which can grow to an enormous size, these are on 40cm stems with a bushy head, which cannot become rampant.

Holly aquifolium Argentea Marginata has glossy green foliage with creamy edges and Holly Blue Angel has dark green foliage.

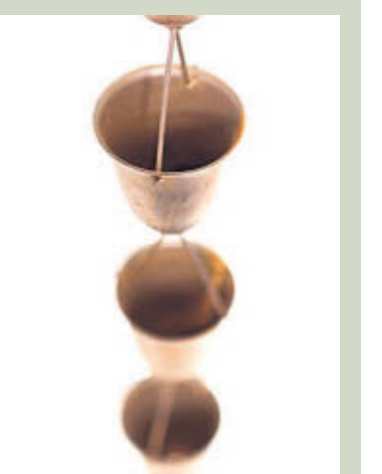

Both are self-fertile, producing masses of berries in winter. Supplied on a 35cm-40cm stem.

Buy one for £21.99 or buy two and receive one of each for £37.98, saving £6. Delivery within 21 days.

GADGET

This rain chain from the National Trust would make a lovely Christmas present for the gardener in your life.

The sound of water trickling in the garden can be incredibly calming - and you don't need a huge, expensive water feature.

This hassle-free vertical water feature is made of steel scooped buckets, each with a hole in the bottom. They capture rainwater and let it trickle gently down in a cascade. It can be suspended from a tree, archway, fence or shed. I found it for £15 via shop.nationaltrust.org.uk
